

CHEMOTHERAPY

And The Collis Curve SOFT Brush

Patients undergoing chemotherapy very often suffer from tender and bleeding gums which compromise their dental health. A brush with straight bristles, because of the direct pressure it exerts, can add to the damage and at the very least be pretty painful. Several Community Dental and Oncology Teams faced with this problem have now trialed the Collis Curve Soft (clear top) brush with very positive results. Because there is no direct pressure on the end of the bristles a gentle massaging action removes plaque and debris whilst at the same time improving the patient's gum health.
